Our client is a globally active family company from Switzerland with several hundred employees spread out over four continents. It is among those companies in the luxury goods field that always live up to their name and reflect a high image for customer-orientation and design services. For the company's Switzerland location, we are looking for a versatile, creative and multifaceted person with a very good eye for colours, shapes and design. We are searching for a

GLOBAL HEAD OF DESIGN (f/m/d)

for the High-end and Fine Jewellery Department.

What your duties entail

- Developing and overseeing new collections in the fine jewellery division
- Setting up and further developing the design department in coordination with the Group's chief of design
- Co-designing a haute joaillerie collection with the Group's chief of design
- Leading the team, including talent promotion with a state-of-the-art level of expertise

What you bring to the table

- You have completed training in the art field, have successfully completed a degree in design or have comparable training
- With 5-8 years of experience in a comparable assignment with all creative topics
- References to your own collections in the medium and high-end jewellery segment
- Good flair for trends and a passion for marketing topics
- You come from the luxury segment, ideally the jewellery or watches field
- Very good language skills in German and/or English, other languages a plus

What you'll be offered

- A family-run company with a global orientation and exciting people
- A great deal of freedom and self-reliance associated with leadership and creativity
- Further professional development with exciting assignments
- The opportunity to implement your own values and ideas and to create, always with professional support
- International customers and business travel with insights into different cultures
